If the plans of James Murphy of Otis street, an expert mechanic of this city for the last 45 years, work out all right, Norwich may yet be represented in the aviation field. For more than a year now, about 18 months, Mr. Murphy has been at work on a flying machine along lines entirely different from the aeroplanes of Curtiss and Paulhan or the airship of Captain Baldwin, having undertaken the problem of air navigation along the lines of bird flight, that is, with wings that shall provide the lifting power.

Those Who Remain at Work. Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 25.—The Bethlehem Steel company closed down tonight, and it is said, will remain closed until the local police authorities are able to give protection to the men who remain loyal to the company. This step was taken because of the serious rioting early this morning, when a mob of 500 foreigners attacked the steel company employes as they were going to work, and when the same crowd of rioters made a second attack tonight while the men were leaving the plant. up and down, as the inventor explained, with a consistent gripping and plowing motion on the air. Their alternate motion is such that there is always one pair of wings in a downward stroke, while some of the others are backing them up. Having progressed so far. The order for the shutdown, it is said, came from the general superintendent. About nine thousand men are employed in the various departments of the Bethlehem Steel company, this concern being the chief industrial operation of the town.

The sheriff is swearing in a number of men tonight, and it is expected that as soon as assurances are given that these men, combined with the police force, are able to cope with the rioters the plant will again be put in operation. flying idea.

Further than the wings, he explained that his plan for the flying machine includes a parachute at the top, a propeller rotating horizontally underneath, which will supply more lifting power, and a propeller and rudder on a horizontal shaft for directing and pushing the machine through the air. THE NATURA. RESTORATION METHOD DOES AWAY

With the Old Sty e False Teeth

DENTISTRY, which is a branch of surgery, has advanced wonderfully in the past few years; In fact, although Dentistry does not get the publicity gives the great science of surgery, its wonders are no less. The ideal replacement of one's lost teeth would be the natural growth of hew ones to take their place—such as happens when children lose their first or baby teeth. The lost teeth of the adult can now be restored by the science of dentistry in such a manner that it is impossible, under ordinary circumstances, to detect the restored teeth from the original or natural ones. The Restoration Method is not one of artificial plates, crowns or bridges—that undesirable artificiality is done away with—and there is no poticeable evidence of the dentist's work in your mouth. Your restored teeth s ems to grow out of your gums just as do your natural testh. It is a wonderful improvement over the old method of replacing lost teeth with false ones.
